Dear Jimmie I know how you know I have perhaps I feel in saying perhaps of rare personality and talents that I know. You will surely arise & shine brightly
in the career which you choose. Besides this outstanding talent of yours, you have such charm of personality & lovable character that you will endear yourself
to the hearts of your public
& you "I mean every word

Dear Jimmie,
I'm writing you all the news that
I deserve and I will not come along. I will be glad to see you again
to be in the winter
get him in to see you
but you will never get together, not for
it will be difficult for me Jack Cooper will see you and we will be dinner and have fun.

Travel where we may
The sun will start the day . . .
Always in the same way.

Goodbye, Technical

We board our ship of fate
With joyful heart and eye
To Technical, this day
We bid a fond goodbye!

In school, our little world
Has been so safe and small
In future, will we walk
With eager stride; or fall?

Will we travel to success
To contentment find the key?
school hours
We cannot know, nor guess,
We can only work; then see.

We'll leave this sheltered port
To seek our destinies
But future years will bring it back
In cherished memories.

ROUNDING out a term of varied events, the high seniors have at last reached their goal, graduation! At the beginning of the year ~~class~~ elections were held, with John Maloon coming out as senior class president, Lillian Valente elected to the position of vice-president, secretary, and Lawrence Anderson and Elise Kitto elected to the places of boys' and girls' treasurers, respectively. Marion Peters was editor of "Senior Memories."

These officers have provided many activities for us as high seniors, including the senior banquet, girls' tea, brawl, and finally the Senior Prom. The senior gift to be presented this term is the money for new velvet stage curtains.

Graduation took place June 7 on the front steps amidst spot lights and loud-speakers. Memories coupled with departure and thoughts of the future were the major thoughts of every graduate as he received his diploma on this momentous occasion. We all possess the joy of work well done and now look forward for more and even greater things to accomplish.

SENIOR SCENIC SIDETRIPS

WHAT with forty-one things to do and only twenty-two weeks to do them in, activities came off fast and furiously this term. The second week of school was ushered in by that great semi-annual event, "Get Acquainted Day," the day you can say "hello" to that honey who sits across the aisle in "Trig." And the dance after school, ah—that's just another fond memory to pass down to your grandchildren with your old chem exams.

On February twenty-first, all the class presidents, etc., dined together on chicken at the Dux Dinner, and all because Wimpy forgot to bring the ducks. But were they squelched? Nay, they went back for more at the Industrial Service Banquet of March twenty-second and then worked off the ill effects at the Junior Roller Skating Party the next night.

The first week after the Easter vacation was celebrated by All Phools' Nite. Everyone acted so natural that even his mother wouldn't have recognized him. (Referring especially to a certain couple of masters of ceremonies.) School talent was featured throughout the program which was enjoyed by everyone who attended the affair.

April was a gala month for the high and mighties. On the twelfth, the girls had a ~~Tea~~ <sup>Tea</sup> under the direction of Lillian Valente, vice-president of the high senior class. All of the proud mammas were there, and a good time was had by all.

Paula Radler and her committee arranged the Senior Banquet, which was held two weeks later. Together as a class for the last time, the high seniors dined on that good old stand-by, lamb.

And then, much to our surprise and bewilderment, all the "more elite members of the student body" (in their own opinions) began to speak to one and all alike. You guessed it—the student body election. And after it was over the elites were just as elite as they ever had been. Incidentally, Bob Looney was elected to take over the duties of Rad Arner, our former student body president.

Then, before anyone knew what had happened, May came tripping in, bringing with her the last full month of the school term. The girls' Spring Festival, which was held on May eighteenth was the first proof of the tripping part. And how some of those girls can handle their feet!

"Snapshot Daze" also occurred in May, when many Technites were snapped in dreamy positions while enjoying their spring fevers. Many good pictures were turned in for the "Senior Memories."

One of the biggest moments of high senior's lives next claimed our attentions. The Senior Prom! The gala, gay, glorious time when the seniors dance to soft music in the girls' gym. Jack Bruner and his committee did the technical work this time, but the class certainly handled the other part well.

With but one week of school in June, the graduates had but little time left to do all those various things they had so often vowed to do. A very novel graduation from the front steps of the school, was the one big event. Everyone donned his "woolies," spotlights pierced the mist, and it was termed a generally successful finish by the teary-eyed members who at that moment became privates in that great army of ex-Technites.

IN THE LIMELIGHT WITH SPRING SPORTS

THE spring term brought three branches of athletics into the limelight, basketball, track, and baseball, which furnished a full and fairly successful season of sports to the fans.

Basketball season ended with a tie for fourth place in the final standings. Tech won two out of seven attempts in its bid for the crown. There was unusually stiff competition for the Bulldogs, as Fremont had the same team back that tied for first honors last year, and as was expected, took the championship for this term. All the other schools had especially strong teams which made a good race out of it. The dominating play of Jay Isola, all-city guard, was featured throughout the season, and he was a consistent point-getter for Tech.

Trying a new idea in high school basketball, an East-West game was held at the Civic Auditorium. The West, of which Tech was a part, won a surprise victory with the score 38 to 35. The West was rated second, because of the high standing of all the teams of the East side in the O. A. L.

With several lettermen returning, the Tech cindermen turned in a fairly successful practice season, winning six out of ten meets. In the annual O. A. L. competition at Edwards Field in Berkeley, the Bulldog team placed fourth, finishing behind McClymonds, Oakland, and University in that order.

Churchill Lewis, outstanding 880-yard man, set a new record at this meet with a time of 2:01:8, to add another achievement to Tech's long list.

The final treat on the sports program was baseball. Starting what looked to be a championship season, the Tech Nine ran along nicely until mid-season when, through scholastic difficulties and a little hard luck or a let-down, they lost to McClymonds. Then they were upset by two teams which were rated under them, all of which pulled them down into another fourth place in the final reckoning.

Tech won four and lost three of the games on its schedule.

Squarzino

Now readers, who are not seniors, just a word about the football season next term. You have a good chance for a championship team, with that great little half-back, Julius Squarzino, and the other lettermen returning to build a team around. So, turn out and give the team the support that is necessary to add another O. A. L. peg to the War Club. Good Luck!

R. O. T. C. LINEUP

The First Battalion, Technical R. O. T. C., climaxed a year's training, under the excellent supervision of Sergeant A. G. Okey, A. P. M. S. and T., by taking first place in the Oakland regiment in the annual inspection by the Federal government.

Commanded by Cadet Lieutenant Colonel James Martin, the battalion staff is as follows: Cadets—Captain Richard Greyson, Drum Major; Captain Daniel Bonsack, Adjutant; Captain Russell Hill, Personnel Adjutant; First Lieutenant Donald Lehman, Ordnance Officer; First Lieutenant Leslie Blake, Plans and Training Officer; and First Lieutenant William Howard, Supply Officer.

A Company is commanded by Cadet Captain Norman Herkenham, assisted by Cadets—First Lieutenant Raymond Behneman and Second Lieutenant Norman Palmer.

B Company is commanded by Cadet Captain Harold Russell, assisted by Cadets—First Lieutenant James Rogers and First Lieutenant Alwyn Williams.

C Company is commanded by Cadet Captain Bruce Nelson, assisted by Cadets—First Lieutenant Gordon Vickery and Second Lieutenant Fred Black.

D Company is commanded by Cadet Captain Clifford Ommert, assisted by Cadets—Second Lieutenant Vernon Prentiss, and Second Lieutenant, Winfield Williams.

FLASHING INTO GIRLS' ATHLETICS

GIRLS' sports were carried on this term in a similar manner to that of the spring term of 1933.

The first two weeks of school found the girls signing up for crew, eager to get out on the lake and begin practice. The practice began soon enough. A visit to the lake on Wednesday or Thursday afternoon found the girls hard at it—backs straining, oars flashing in the wintry sun, and the steady directions of the coxswain sounding across the lake.

And then the regatta! Aching muscles were forgotten in joyful anticipation of the race. The boats were lined up at the starting point, each girl tense at her oar; the signal was given and they were off. It didn't take long. The victors were soon talking of the numerals they would receive, and everyone stroked steadily in the direction of the boathouse where a weenie-roast awaited them. The crew season was over.

The baseball season started off with an equal amount of enthusiasm. Captains were elected, teams were chosen and baseball was well on its way. The same amount of practice was required for baseball as for crew. Twice a week the girls turned out. On these afternoons could be heard the crack of the bat as it met the ball and the encouraging cries of the players to one another.

And then the final week of play for the championship—the tennis tournament rounding to a close, the impatient waiting for the G. A. A. Banquet when the awards would be given out, and then—the school term was as good as over for these sports-minded girls.
